PORCELAIN

Porcelain is a 100% natural material made from clay, sand, and feldspar that contains a high percentage of a mineral known as kaolinite and other mineral oxides, which are responsible for the strength and durability of porcelain.

This mixture is put into a kiln and fired at high temperatures up to 2000°F. The result is an incredibly dense material that is nearly impervious to stains, heat, UV rays, and scratching.

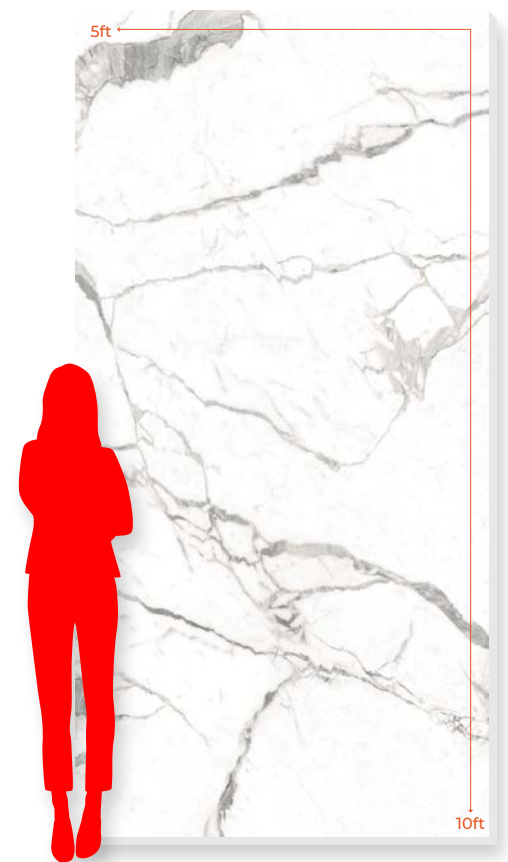

Porcelain colors come in numerous shades. Advanced digital imaging techniques allow vivid graphics that mimic the most beautiful marble, other natural stones, wood, metal, or any desired pattern to be applied directly to the porcelain slabs by the manufacturer.

Moderno is the largest national surfacing company 100% dedicated to the fabrication & installation of large-format porcelain (5'x10') slabs.
